

Lewis Joseph Feik
Milestone 1 About me

My name is Lewis Feik, and I am pursuing a career in cybersecurity with the goal of becoming a Security Analyst. I have a strong interest in technology, protecting systems, and continuously learning about ways to prevent threats in today's digital world. My motivation for this field comes from both personal experience and my determination to grow into a professional who contributes to keeping organizations safe.

I earned my high school diploma, which gave me a foundation for problem-solving and discipline in academic settings. Outside of school, I explored interests in real estate and gained valuable hands-on experience through construction work. These experiences helped me build persistence, attention to detail, and communication skills. In addition, I developed my technical curiosity by working independently on network setups for family members and coworkers. This included configuring routers, troubleshooting Wi-Fi issues, and connecting gaming devices, which gave me practical, real-world exposure to basic networking concepts.

My career goal in cybersecurity is to keep learning and improving my knowledge and skills so I can achieve the professional milestones I have written down for myself. I want to master areas such as network defense, threat analysis, and incident response, and eventually position myself as a trusted analyst within the industry. I am committed to ongoing education and certifications, as well as gaining hands-on experience, to ensure I stay current in a fast-changing field. Ultimately, I aim to build a career where I can protect systems and data while advancing my own professional growth after graduation.
